

Dr. Ndjamé Diop, from Senegal, is the World Bank Lead Economist for Indonesia. Ndjamé joined the World Bank in 2000 as a Young Professional, and has worked successively as Senior Economist at the Trade Department (2002-2005), Senior Economist and Resident Representative in Tunisia (2007-2010) and Lead Economist for Jordan and Lebanon. Ndjamé has published in the areas of trade, growth, competitiveness, and fiscal and monetary policies. His most recent publication is a book on “natural resource abundance, growth and diversification in MENA” (October 2012).